

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Elucidation of the early history of Glasgow by the publication of original documents may be said to have been initiated by the Maitland Club, and perhaps none of the works issued by it has been more successful in that direction than a volume published just half-a-century ago, and edited by Dr. Joseph Robertson, then resident in the city.¹ Though relating primarily to the Collegiate Church of St. Mary and the Monastery of the Friars Preachers, the book was not confined to material obtained from the registers and charters of these religious establishments, but was made to include also a selection from miscellaneous deeds illustrative of the ancient topography of the city. It was probably in consequence of the value attached to this latter part of the collection that the prosecution of similar researches in a more systematic form was suggested; and it is known that the late Marquis of Bute, then president of the Maitland Club, and donor of the book just alluded to, purposed to supplement his gift by presenting selections from the earlier protocol books of the town clerks of Glasgow. Lord Bute, however, did not live to carry out his generous intention, and the scheme for publication of the protocols has, till recently, remained in abeyance.

The several contributions made by the Maitland Club to the history of Glasgow have been succeeded in recent years by two volumes of selections from the records of the town council, and by a volume of charters and documents relating to the city, all published by the Scottish Burgh Records Society for its members and the corporation, while a fourth volume, containing a historical preface by Sir James Marwick, their editor, is expected to follow immediately.

In consequence of the favour with which the published volumes were received, and the increasing interest taken in original sources of information on civic and family history, the proposal for making the protocols available to the public was revived and a specimen volume issued in the end of 1894. The result of this experiment has been satisfactory to an extent which seems to justify the further prosecution of the work, and a series of volumes is now projected for bringing the publication down to the year 1600. The town council of Glasgow have signified approval of the scheme by subscribing for copies, and a number of gentlemen interested in historical research have also given it their support.

In the preface to the specimen volume attention was directed to the nature of the information supplied by the protocols, and to the plan adopted for presenting in each abstract the essence of the original. Here it may be sufficient to note that these records preserve the names of a large proportion of the householders in the city, and particulars of their properties, at a period antecedent to any extant council record or burgess roll. Possession of heritable property in the burgh was then one of the qualifications for burgess-ship, and attainment of the status of a burgess was itself a pre-requisite to the privilege of practising as a craftsman or engaging in trade or merchandise.

Protocols connected with landward estates, as a glance at the place index will show, are not unfrequent; but it is probable that the greater number of writs relating to this class of property would be recorded not in the protocol books of the town clerks of burghs but in those of other notaries, whose representatives were, by act of parliament, required to deposit them in Edinburgh. Should any considerable number of these latter books still be in existence their publication would form an important supplement to Registrum Magni Sigilli, one of the most useful of the series of records now being issued by the Lord Clerk Register, but applying only to crown grants and estates of crown vassals. Notaries' protocols extended to every class of heritable property irrespective of tenure.

The present volume almost exhausts the second of William Hegait's three protocol books; and likewise contains a few documents relating to a chaplainry and hospital founded by Sir Roland Blacader, subdean of Glasgow. Though these documents are otherwise interesting, they are here given principally with the view of supplying the descriptions of various properties contained in writings prior in date to any existing protocols.

It was originally intended that the continuation series should be completed in three large-sized volumes, but as the preparation of each of these would occupy a considerable time it has been thought better to adhere to the size of the specimen and to issue a volume half-yearly.

275. ROBERT CALLENDAR, JUNIOR. 22 April, 1556.

1. 6. Robert Callendar, younger, of Ballincloycht, produced a precept of Sasine of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, under the testimony of the great seal, which precept he presented to John Stewarde of Bowhows, bailie in that part thereby constituted, humbly requiring him to execute the same. The bailie delivered the precept to the notary to be read and published. The precept, addressed to her sheriff and bailies of Stryvilinge, and to John Stewarde nominatim, sets forth that the Queen, after her lawful and perfect age of twelve years and general revocation in the last parliament, had given and granted to Robert Callendar of Dowratour, father of Robert Callendar of Ballincloych, in liferent, the 2½ merk land of Wester Mwkcroft, which James Robisoune then occupied; and the 20 s. land of Thomefyn, which William Mwntheitht formerly occupied; in which lands the said Robert then stood infest in liferent. Also, to the said Robert, younger, and his heirs, the said lands; with the 2½ merks lands of Wester Mwkcroft; also, the lands of Ballincloych, Curroure, Baldow, Tombow, Eister Mwkcroft, Litill Mwkcroft, with tenants, tenandries, and free tenants serving the same; which lands had fallen into the Queen's hands by virtue of the general revocation. The precept is dated at Stryvilinge, 23 March, A.R. 15¹. Sasine given to Robert Callendar, junior, in terms of the precept, on the ground of the lands of Baddow and Ballincloych, and at the manor thereof. Witnesses: Alexander Stewarde, in Barrachtny; Walter Stewarde, in Cassiltoune; Patrick Robisoune, and David Byyny.

WILLIAM HESAIT.
Vol. ii., fol. 6.

276. ALEXANDER STEWARDE. Eodem die. 2 p.m.

Robert Callendar, younger of Ballincloych, gave sasine to Alexander Stewarde of his 20 s. land of Thomfyn and the 2½ merk land of Wester Mwkcroft, mentioned in No. 275. Witnesses: John Stewarde, in Bowhows; James Robisoune, John Robisoune, his father; and John Callendar and David Lyndesay.

1. 7.

277. BEATRIX STARKE AND SPOUSE. 24 April, 1556, bet. 12 & 1 p.m.

Mychael Lyndesay, bailie, gave sasine to Beatrix Stark, as heir of her mother q. Elizabeth Allane, spouse of q. William Stark, of a tenement of land, with yard and pertinents, lying t.c., on the east side of the street leading from the Market Cross to the South Port, between the lands of q. John Law, residing in Mernis on the north, the lands of q. Gilbert Auldecorne on the south, and the burn of Malyndinor on the east; also another tenement lying on the south side of the street, leading from the South Port to the bridge of Clyde, between the lands and tenement of Marion Gayne on the west and another tenement on the east; also an annualrent of 24 s. furth of a tenement of q. Gilbert Auldecorne, between the tenement of q. Elizabeth . . . on the north, and the tenement of John Pollok on the south. Thereafter, Beatrix resigned the tenements and annualrents in favor of herself and John Stene, her spouse, and l.l. Witnesses: Mr. David Wilsoun, John Wan, Robert Coichtrane, David Landes, Thomas Clydisdaile, comburgesses; and David Watsoune, serjeant.

278. JOHN BRYIS. 24 April, 1556, 2 p.m.

f. 8. Michael Lyndesay, bailie, gave sasine to John Bryis, son of John Bryis, burgess of Aire, as one of three heirs of q. Helen Walkar, spouse of James Dalgleis, of the third part of the back tenement now occupied by James Dowglas, lying t.c., between the fore tenement of the collegiate church of the Blessed Virgin Mary on the east, the yard of David Lyndesay on the west, the tenement of Bartholomew Symssoune on the north, and the lands of George Herbisoune on the south. Witnesses: John Steward in Bogtoun; James Frebarne, John Andirsoune, burgess of Glesgw; and Robert Burne, serjeant.

279. ARCHINBALD HERBISOUNE. Eodem die. 4 p.m.

John Bryis, uncle, and one of the three heirs of q. Helen Walkar, spouse of James Dalgleis, sold to Archinbald Herbisoune one third part of a back tenement, lying t.c., on the . . . side of the street leading from the metropolitan church of Glasgow to the market cross, between the fore tenement of the collegiate church of the Blessed Virgin Mary on the east, the yard of David Lyndesay on the west, the tenement of George Herbisoune on the south, and the tenement of Sir Bartholomew on the north. Witnesses: John Grahame, John Drippe, John Stewynis, senior; John Bar, John Seller, comburgesses of Glesgw; and David Watsoune, serjeant.

280. JOHN CAMMEROUNE. 2 May, 1556, 9 a.m.

f. 9. Jonet Knox and Robert Kelso, spouses, sold to John Cammeroune the west booth of a tenement of q. John Knox, lying in the street commonly called the Tronegait, between the tenement of q. John Masoune on the west, and the east booth of the said tenement of John Knox on the east. Sasine given by Mychael Lyndesay, bailie. Judicially ratified by Jonet Knox¹.

¹The ratifying clause sets forth that Jonet appeared in presence of the bailie, notary and witnesses, and, touching the holy Evangelis, gave her bodily oath that she was not compelled or coacted to make the alienation mentioned in the protocol. This, so far as it goes, is the usual form, though it was customary also to state that the wife appeared in the absence of her husband.

Witnesses: William Lyndesay, Nicholas Boge, Thomas Lairde, burgess; Robert Wodesyde; and David Watsoune, serjeant.

WILLIAM HESBATT.
Vol. II., fol. 9.

Eodem die et hora. The said John became bound to make the said booth redeemable by the said Jonet and her spouse, and their heirs and assignees, for payment of the sum of forty merks.

281. WILLIAM SMYTH. 11 May, 1556, 2 p.m.

Robert Arthwire, son and heir of q. David Arthwire, burgess, sold to William Smyth, smith (fabro) and Elizabeth Arneile, and l.l., a piece of waste land, with the pertinents, lying t.c., in the vennel (vico) of the Friars Preachers, between the lands of Thomas Lairde on the east and the lands of Beatrix Stark on the west. Sasine given by David Lyoune, bailie. Witnesses: Alexander Stewarde, Mr. William Wyzet, Nycholas Blak, John Aitkyne, William Rank; and Robert Burne, sergeant. Moreover, Jonet Carruderis, mother of the said Robert, with consent of John Aitkyn, her spouse, renounced her conjunct infeftment of the property for a sum of money paid by Robert.

f. 10.

282. ALLAN STEWARDE. 11 May, 1556, 3 p.m.

David Lyoune, bailie, gave sasine to Allan Stewarde as heir of q. David Stewarde of Castellmylk, his father, of a tenement of land, fore and back, occupied by James Graham, lying t.c., in the street leading from the Metropolitan Church to the Market Cross, between the lands of the Grammar School on the south, the lands of the chaplainry of St. Kentigern on the north, and the common vennel also on the south; with a yard and pertinents, and that in special warrandice of the lands of Henderstoun. Witnesses: John Grahame, Mr. William Wyzet, Alexander Stewarde, and Robert Corbart of Hartgraif.

f. 11.

283. JOHN CRAWFURDE AND SPOUSE. 15 May, 1556, 8 a.m.

John Crawford of Rowchtsallo produced to Duncan Stryvilinge, bailie in that part, specially constituted, a precept of sasine whereby John Stryvilinge, of Craigbernarde, charged the bailie to give sasine to John Crawford of Rowchtsallo and Isobell Hammyltoune, his spouse, and l.l., of an annualrent of £20 Scots furth of the granter's £4 land of Craigbernarde, or of the fourth part thereof, lying within the earldom of Lennox and shire of Stryvilinge. Precept subscribed, at Glasgow, 13 May, 1556, in presence of Sir William Crawford, chaplain; Duncan Stryvilinge, brother of the said John; Robert Dunlop, David Norvell, and William Hegait. Sasine given on the ground of the lands in terms of the precept. Witnesses: Thomas Balquhannen in Kylwynnet; Robert Dunlop, William Craige in Quylt; John Crawford, son of the said John.

284. MILLER—JAKSOUNE. 17 May, 1556.

- f. 11. John and Thomas Jaksoune, brothers, sons of Jonet Miller, obliged themselves to desist from all vexing, troubling and disturbing of the said Jonet in the peaceable occupation and cultivation of her messuage of Bernehill, extending to a four merk land of new extent of Bernehill, during the whole of her lifetime, notwithstanding the sasines and feu farms formerly obtained by them of John Dunbar of Blanter or any other right. Moreover the said John and Thomas obliged themselves to pay to the said Jonet the sum of 160 merks; which sum the said Jonet granted in loan to the said brothers for obtaining the said lands in feu farm. And if it happened that the said Jonet did not exact the said sum during her lifetime, nevertheless it should be lawful for her to bequeath the same to any of her children, to be paid by the said Thomas and John to such legatee. Witnesses: Andrew Miller, John Jaksoune, John Craige, and John Miller.

285. JOHN JAKSOUNE. 17 May, 1556, 10 a.m.

- f. 12. John Jaksoune produced to John Miller in Mylnehwicht, bailie in that part, a precept whereby John Dunbar of Blanter charged the bailie to give him (there named John Jaksoune, senior), sasine of the two merk land of new extent of Bernehill, with the pertinents which he then occupied, lying in the barony of Blanter and shire of Lanark, conform to a feu charter. Precept subscribed and sealed at Blanter, 28 February, 1555-6, in presence of Sir John Miller, chaplain, John Miller in Mylnehwicht, John Watsoune in Bernehill, and James Clerk. After the reading of the precept sasine given in terms thereof on the ground of the lands. Witnesses: John Jaksoune, younger, in Bernehill, John Craige in Awchinrayth, Andrew Miller in Bernehill, John Watsoune, younger.

¹Interesting particulars regarding the Cunninghams of Craighs will be found in the Diary of William Cunningham (1673-80) published by the Scottish History Society. The founder of the family appears to have been William Cunningham, a cadet of the earldom of Glencairn, to whom the first earl gave the lands of Craighs in 1479. By a contract of marriage entered into between him and Marion Auchinleck, his second wife, in 1496, he came under an obligation "to cause his son and apparent heir, William Cunningham, to marry Geillis Campbell, daughter to the said Marion Auchinleck, and, failing Geillis, to marry her sister Margaret, and, failing Margaret, to marry a third sister, Jonet, and in case he marry none of them, to pay 300 merks" [Diary, p. 23.] The "Geillis" here alluded to is no doubt the lady mentioned in the text.

¹Newbattle Abbey, on the South Esk, was founded by King David I. and bestowed on monks of the Cistercian order. These monks speedily became owners of extensive tracts of land in various parts of the country, including a large estate in lower Clydesdale, the gift of King Malcolm IV. Between the Abbey and this western territory free passage was secured by various grants, recorded in the Abbey Chartulary, printed by the Bannatyne Club. In one of these, a charter by Walter, the Steward of Scotland, the name Munkland appears so early as the year 1322, and by the continuance of this designation the district can still be identified with its ancient possessors. From a rental of the abbey lands, made up a few years after the Reformation and printed in the Chartulary, it appears that the "baronie of Monkland," divided into about forty separate holdings, yielded a revenue of £219 3s. 1d. yearly. Mark Ker, granter of the charter mentioned in the text, was abbot from the year 1555, and subsequent to the Reformation he held the abbey lands as commendator. His son, also named Mark, afterwards Earl of Lothian, succeeded to the abbacy, which was erected into a temporal lordship and transmitted to his heirs.

618. TRANSLATION OF DEED OF FOUNDATION BY ROLLAND BLACADYR, SURDEAN OF GLASGOW, OF A CHAPLAINRY AT THE ALTAR OF ST. JOHN AND ST. NICHOLAS; CONTAINING ALSO REGULATIONS FOR THE HOSPITAL NEAR THE STABLEGREEN, FOUNDED BY HIM. [1503-41¹].

TO ALL AND SUNDRY, the sons of holy mother church, as well present as future, who shall see and hear the present letters of foundation: Rolland Blacadyr, sub-dean of the church of Glasgow, greeting in the Author of Salvation: Be it known to you all that I, savingly led by the motive of holy love, and the prompting of sincere devotion in that behalf, with consent and authority of the most reverend father in Christ and lord, Gavin, by divine mercy, archbishop of Glasgow; also, with the consent and assent interposed of the lords, the dean and chapter of Glasgow, chapterly assembled, after the sound of the bell tolling, according to wont; for the praise, glory, and honour of the most holy and undivided Trinity, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; of the glorious Virgin Mary; of the blessed Nycholas, Servanus, and Machutus confessors; and of all celestial citizens; in augmentation of divine service and the endowment of churchmen; for the weal and relief of my soul, and of the souls of Robert Blacadyr (of happy memory), first archbishop of the said church of Glasgow, my uncle and lord; and of Sir Patrick Blacadyr, sometime of Tullealean, knight, my father, and of my mother, and of my other relatives, kindred, friends, and parishioners; and likewise of all those from whom I have received any good things in life, which neither by duty nor bounty have I fully compensated; and of all the souls of the faithful, as well living as dead,—have of new created, founded, endowed, constituted, and ordained, and by the tenor of these presents, do create, found, endow, constitute, and ordain a perpetual chaplainry, ¹Roland Blacader, founder of this chaplainry and hospital, was subdean of Glasgow as early as the year 1503, and he was so designed in an addition made to the original foundation, and dated 12 June, 1541 (infra p. 113); but as his name occurs in the obituary recorded in Registrum Episcopatus Glasguensis (Vol. II. p. 615), under the date 8 March, 1540-1, there is evidently a mistake in one or other of these documents. If Blacader really survived till 1540, he must have previously demitted office, because James Houston, founder of the collegiate church of B. V. Mary and St. Anne, was subdean from about the year 1527 till his death, in 1551. The date of the foundation here translated has not been ascertained, as the original document is wanting, and the notarial copy from which the translation is made bears no date. It may, however, be assumed that the grant was made near the close of the founder's career, as the numerous properties conveyed are said to have been acquired by himself. Several of the acquisitions will be found recorded in the Glasgow Diocesan Registers, published by the Grampian Club. The notarial copy, as well as the originals of Nos. III. and IV. of the Appendix, are in the possession of the Andersonian University, Glasgow.

with a chaplain, within the said church of Glasgow, within the nave thereof, in and at the altar of St. John the Baptist and St. Nicholas, situated and placed in the south side of the foresaid church, at the first pillar from the rood loft (solario crucifixi), from the lands, tenements, revenues, and rents underwritten, for a perpetual memorial of the fact, in the manner and form underwritten. For the endowment of which chaplainry, and for the due, honourable, and perpetual sustenance of the charges thereof, and of the chaplain for the time being, I have given, granted, and have delivered, bestowed, assigned, and confirmed, without any reservation whatever, to be held and had and for ever possessed from me and my heirs in free and perpetual alms, the lands, tenements, annualrents, and possessions underwritten, which have come to me by conquest through divine favour, with all and sundry liberties, commodities, easements, and their pertinents whatsoever, as freely, quietly, fully, well and in peace, as any other lands, tenements, annualrents and possessions, given in alms within the kingdom of Scotland, are most freely, quietly, fully and best held and possessed, or could be held and possessed; of which lands, tenements, annualrents, and eleemosinary possessions, the names, designations, and boundaries are described below:—

In the first place, one acre of arable land lying in the field and territory (agro et terretorio) of the city of Glasgow, in and upon the Provansyd, between the lands of the church of St. Kentigern built outwith the ports of the Gallowgait on the east and the lands sometime of one called Canderand on the west. Item, one acre of arable land commonly called the Round Akyr in the said territory and field in and upon the Deynsyd, between the lands of q. John Ynglis on the east and of the chaplainry of the altar of St. John the Baptist above mentioned on the west, and the Ramyshorne on the south. Item, three roods of arable land, lying next and contiguous on the south side of the said acre of land called the Round Akyr, between the lands of the said q. John Ynglis on the east and of the chaplainry of the altar of St. John the Baptist on the west and the common street of the Deynsyd on the north. Item, seven roods and more of arable land, lying contiguous in and upon the Provandsyd, between the lands of q. William Cragaynes as well on the east as on the west. ¹The privilege of girth, or sanctuary, anciently belonged to most churches, and, in a higher degree, to certain of them in special, with extended bounds marked by crosses, as at Lesmahagow, where King David I. granted the privilege of his peace to anyone who, "to escape peril of life or limb, flees to the said cell, or comes within the four crosses that stand around it" (Scotland in the Middle Ages, p. 197). The cross

mentioned in the text may have indicated one of the limits of the protected area in Glasgow. shall be conveniently done by the hands of the priest, who shall be over the chaplainry for the time, with consent of the procurator-fiscal of the choir of Glasgow, and by advice of the dean and president, and of the remaining brother canons present for the time; and if it happen that the lands given under reversion be lawfully redeemed, the sum as said is should be invested in other annual rents as above. Reserving from all these, to me and all above expressed, the suffrages of the divine offices and pious prayers, and to myself as long as I shall live, free ordination and disposal in every way of the foresaid chaplainry, with the institution of a chaplain therein; but after my passage from this light I constitute, ordain, and depute the chapter of the foresaid church of Glasgow, then and for the time being in the city, present and constituting the chapter, true and only patrons of the said chaplainry, of which whenever it shall happen to be vacant, the free ordination, disposal in every way, donation, admission, and institution, shall for ever belong to the said patron in full right. In which chaplainry, after due vacation thereof, the said chapter, patrons aforesaid, shall be bound to ordain and institute a vicar of the choir of Glasgow, of good life and rule to serve in the said chaplainry, according to the tenor of my present foundation; which chaplain so appointed and instituted therein shall thenceforth personally, continuously, and forever reside in the city of Glasgow; and on every day in the year while for this he shall be disposed, he shall by himself celebrate devout masses on and at the last mentioned altar, in all which he shall be bound to pious and devout commemoration for my soul and for all the souls above mentioned. And, nevertheless, in each and every of the three greater hours of each day of the whole year he shall sing in the choir of Glasgow for ever, viz., at matins, the greater mass and vespers. And the said chaplain shall serve in these great hours foresaid, as the rest of the vicars of the choir serve; also, in all and sundry occurrences of the whole year, processions and chapters to be chapterly assembled; also, in all and sundry the obits and exequies of the dead, at present founded and to be founded (to be distributed according to those present as well to whom it falls by lot as for their deputies whenever they are to be celebrated) in decent and collegiate habit, and along with the vicars of the choir be personally present to serve constantly and diligently, and he shall sing dominical mass in his turn, in like manner and in the same way as one of these vicars; and if he shall be lacking in the premises, or shall be absent, he shall be liable to punishment, and his fines and forfeits shall be applied for the said vicars, so that the said chaplain shall pay to the said vicars the forfeits, and shall participate in the fines of the said vicars in the three great hours above mentioned, and shall take his synod in his turn in the manner of the vicars, and the chaplain of the subdean, nevertheless, shall always be called among the choir.

MOREOVER, I will and ordain that the chaplain so instituted as aforesaid to the foresaid chaplainry shall be master of the hospital house of the poor and indigent casually coming thereto, newly founded and erected by me, lying in the said city of Glasgow, near the Stabillgrene, and collector of the fruits and annualrents thereof for distribution of the same, conform to the tenor of my present foundation; which chaplain also shall have his chamber within the said hospital. Also, I will and ordain that a trust-worthy married man, of good life and honest conversation, with his wife, shall be keeper of the said house of the poor, and shall be chosen and changed by the said chaplain as often as necessary; which keeper shall take care of the said house, with the bed clothing of the poor; which keeper so appointed in the said house shall have bedding and fire as aforesaid. Also, I constitute and ordaine that there shall be six beds, furnished with blankets, coverlets, and pillows for the said poor, so to be received. And which keeper of the house shall have a garden for vegetables and herbs, to be given to the said poor. Moreover, I statute and ordain that my foresaid chaplain shall every year disburse forty shillings, with which the said chaplain and keeper of the poor's hospital shall buy lentils, of the value of said sum, between the feasts of saints Martin and Andrew the Apostle in winter; with which lentils the said keeper and his wife shall cook green vegetables with garden herbs on the evening of every night for the feeding and nourishment of the poor assembling there; and that when herbs fail, the keeper shall cook white gruel from the said lentils, properly prepared, for the poor received into the said hospital; and that the said chaplain shall keep the key of the chest where the lentils are stored, and give out the same to the keeper as required. And also the said chaplain shall buy an iron pot containing two quarts for cooking gruel or vegetables, and a cauldron also containing two quarts for washing the feet of the poor; and an iron grate weighing four stones for making a fireplace; and that the said chaplain shall provide the said things when need requires. Also, I will and ordain that the said chaplain shall yearly, and in each year, between the feasts of Pentecost and St. Peter ad vincula, buy £3 worth of coals for the said house of the poor, and put them into the place built and appointed therefor, viz., the coyl hows for the fire place and fire provided for the said poor. I will that the said chaplain have 20 s. yearly for coals to be bought for himself.

I will, also, that my chaplain shall pay every year to the vicars of the choir, for my obit and for the obit of my parents, 44 s., as is contained in the book of martyrology, and that the major sacristan, at the time of my exequies, shall spread a table in the choir with decent tapestries and two wax lights, and likewise, on the day of my exequies, spread a table over my tomb with decent tapestries and two wax lights; and there do likewise on the obit of my parents, in the choir and on the tomb of my father in the lower church, as on my obit; and the said chaplain shall pay to the said sacristan 4 s. for his labours; and also pay to the minor sacristan for the tolling of the bells on each obit fourteen pennies; and for the ringer of the little bell of St. Kentigern through the town, for each obit four pennies. Also, I will that my chaplain, every year, with advice of the procurators fiscal of the vicars, shall choose sixty honest poor people possessing hearth house and home in the city of Glasgow, and that they shall attend in the church in the time of the celebration of the obits and pray for my soul, and the souls of my parents and of all the faithful dead, and on the morrow after the obit of my parents payment shall be made of eight pennies to each of them. Moreover, I will that my chaplain shall pay to the vicars of the choir every week for three masses, one on Monday of requiem for the souls of all the faithful dead, another on Friday of the five wounds of Christ, and the third on Saturday of our Lady, and shall pray in these masses for the souls above mentioned, and payment for these masses shall be made on each day of the celebration, viz., six pennies for each. Also, I will that on the day of my obit in each year my chaplain shall cause twenty two masses to be celebrated, viz., ten with the Friars Minors and twelve with the Friars Preachers dwelling in the city of Glasgow, and shall pay for each mass six pennies on the morrow after the obit of my parents. Also, I will that on the day of my obit my chaplain shall choose eight chaplains, and that they shall sit around my tomb on each side in their surplices, and by two and two shall celebrate the obsequies of the dead, and on the morrow each one of them shall celebrate requiem mass, in which masses and obsequies they shall pray for the souls above mentioned; and my chaplain shall pay to each one of them for their trouble twelve pennies. Also, I will and ordain that my chaplain for the time shall cause to be made in each year three wax candles weighing three pounds, of which one shall be given to our Lady of le Garroch on the vigil of her Assumption, another to the blessed Nicholas at the altar of St. John the Baptist, and that in the first vespers of the vigil of the said Nicholas, and the third to St. Blase, and that in the first vespers of his feast. Moreover, I advise and order that the said chaplain in each year shall diligently consider and observe, when the provincial and visitor of the Friars preachers shall come to make visitation of the said convent of Glasgow before their general chapter, that the said chaplain with the procurators fiscal of the choir of Glasgow shall open my chest or my box, which chest is kept in the common chest or box of the vicars, and shall take therefrom the obligations of the said Friars, corroborated by the subscriptions manual of the provincial and priors and by the seals of each convent; which obligations the said chaplain and the foresaid procurators of the choir of Glasgow shall show to the said provincial or visitor of the same in each year before their general chapter; in which letters of obligation the said Preachers are bound weekly and every week in perpetuity, in their convent, to celebrate thirteen masses for the soul of the founder and his parents; for which celebration of thirteen masses weekly the said founder gave to the said Friars Preachers and their priors, as their obligations clearly attest, £260, in ready and usual money of the currency of the kingdom of Scotland. Which said letters of obligation being shown to the provincial or visitor as aforesaid the said chaplain with the procurators fiscal of the choir shall faithfully replace and enclose in their accustomed keeping. And the said chaplain and procurators fiscal shall give in writing to the provincial or visitor the names of the places where the foresaid thirteen masses shall be celebrated, and for this trouble the said chaplain shall pay yearly to the provincial or visitor five shillings in ready money: whereupon the said chaplain and procurators fiscal of the choir shall exhort the said provincial and visitor that all and sundry the foresaid thirteen masses are to be duly celebrated, and the said chaplain and procurators fiscal of the choir shall give after exhibition of the obligations a flagon of good and choice beer with two wheaten loaves for their trouble. Also, I will and ordain that if the said chaplain instituted by me shall be absent beyond the space of fifteen days continuously, unless necessity of life, fear of death or infirmity of body, shall render it necessary for the time, or by license being asked and obtained from the said patrons, that the said chaplainry shall, from the very fact, and by law, be deemed to become vacant and shall be freely bestowed upon another vicar of the choir of good life. Also, I will and ordain that the chaplainry founded by me of new shall not be reckoned to be a whole benefice, office and stall in the choir of Glasgow. Also, I will that my chaplain shall pay in each year on the morrow after the obit of my parents to the procurators fiscal of the vicars, for their trouble, 14 s., and that the procurators fiscal if necessary shall go with my chaplain to distrain for the annualrents where necessary but not otherwise. Also, I will that all my letters of foundation shall be kept in a small chest, which chest shall have two locks, with two keys, one of which keys shall be in the keeping of the subchanter, if he pleases, and for the keeping thereof he shall have part in the prayers founded by me, and the other key shall be in the keeping of the procurators fiscal of the vicars, and the said small chest shall be kept in the common great chest of the vicars; and that my chaplain shall in each year place in that chest, in presence of the procurators fiscal £3 of the usual money of Scotland on the morrow after the obit of my parents, and this for renewing the beds of the poor and for blankets, coverlets and pillows, and the improvement of the hospital house of the poor and for the repair of three houses in the Drygait when necessary; and all these things shall be done with the advice of the procurators fiscal of the vicars; and if the chaplain shall fail to place the said sum in the said chest as said is, within four days after the said first day, the procurators shall cause the said chaplain to be compelled by the dean and chapter to place the said sum therein. And that the procurators fiscal shall see that the said chaplain expends the remaining money faithfully and rightly as necessity requires; and that the residue not expended shall again be faithfully placed in the chest as before. And that the chaplain shall write in a book the sum contained in the chest in each year, and likewise the procurators fiscal.

Also on the twelfth day of the month of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand five hundred and forty one, I, Roland Blacadyr, subdean of Glasgow, have granted in loan to Sir William Crawford, chaplain of my chaplainry founded by me the sum of £10 Scots; which sum being received the chaplain shall be able the more easily to perform the several ordinances contained in my foundation; which sum of ten pounds, sufficiently counted, the said Sir William and his successors lawfully instituted may be able to pay within two years from the time of actual payment thereof to and at the sight of the procurators fiscal of the vicars; and that the said procurators fiscal, together with the chaplain, shall replace the foresaid sum of ten pounds in my box or chest where my letters of foundation are enclosed, until the entry of another new chaplain, and thus it shall be done to him and his successors as with the first chaplain. And if the said Sir William or his successors refuse to make grateful payment of the said sum of ten pounds in due time I will that the said procurators fiscal of the choir of Glasgow complain to the dean or president for the time and the remanent canons of the chapter of the ungodly and unjust retention of the foresaid sum of ten pounds, and compel the said chaplain to pay within a month under pain of deprivation of the foresaid chaplainry. Moreover I will, if any chaplain for the time is in any need for reparation of anything contained in my foundation, that the procurators fiscal of the vicars shall examine and consider the truth of the said necessity, and how much will suffice for the reparation of that necessity. If it extends in whole to the sum of ten pounds beyond the deposit it should be lent to the said chaplain, taking his obligation for his repaying the said sum lent to him within one year or two years at most; and this shall be done with the licence and advice of the dean and chapter, and the payment again made by the chaplain shall be replaced in the chest as before. Also, I will that the chaplain for the time, on his departure, shall leave behind him in the chamber two wooden bedsteads, with two feather beds, with two coverlets made in Ruglyn, with a wooden table, called a contour, of small size. And I will, when the keeper of the house goes away, or is changed on account of his negligence, that the chaplain shall diligently examine and see that the said keeper leave behind him the iron grate, the iron pot, the copper caldron, the wooden chest with two locks and all and sundry blankets and coverlets pertaining to the beds of the poor and the bed of the keeper himself.

As I, Roland Blacadyr, have ordained in my foundation that my chaplain shall replace the ten pounds which I have lent him, as at the end of two years, he shall deposit the said ten pounds in keeping in the chest where the letters of my foundation are contained, as is at length expressed in the foundation. Moreover I will that the chaplain shall keep these ten pounds so long as he is chaplain in manner foresaid; and the said chaplain shall pay freely or cause to be paid to his successor the said ten pounds, and so all the chaplains of the said chaplainry shall likewise cause to be paid, each one to his successor.

This is a true copy of the principal foundation of the said Mr. Roland, chaplain foresaid, agreeing with the original in everything and collated by me notary public underwritten. Witness my subscription manual.

[Sir William Crawford, the chaplain appointed by the founder, appears to have remained in possession of the chaplainry and mastership of the hospital till about the year 1589. Shortly after the Reformation the magistrates and council of Glasgow obtained a charter from Queen Mary (Glasgow Charters, Part II., pp. 131-7) giving them right to the revenues of all chaplainries and altarages in the city, to be applied towards "ministry and hospitality"; but reserving to the former possessors the use of their benefices during their respective lifetimes. This qualification secured Crawford in possession at the time; and it is also probable that his right was confirmed by the magistrates and council, because when, in 1572-3, they conveyed to the college all that they then held under Queen Mary's gift (Ib. pp. 149-62), the hospital and chaplainry do not seem to have been transferred. After Crawford's death the provost, bailies and council, by an act, dated 8 November, 1589, "gevis and grantis to Thomas Cloggy the chaplanrie or alterage of Sanct Johnne the Baptist, founded be umquhill maister Allane Blacatur, suddene of Glasgw, situat within the Hie Kirk thairof, quhairunto is annexit the new hospitall hesyd the Stabillgrene, last possest be Sir Williame Crawford, last chaplaine and maister of the said hospitall, with all rentis, dewties, and emolumentis pertenying thairto, during all the dayis of his lyfytyme." The hospital was appointed to be inspected on the following Wednesday by the bailies, master of work, and other two members of council, and Cloggy became bound to uphold and keep it conform to the foundation (Glasgow Records, I., p. 147). The report of this inspection (Ib. p. 148) contains interesting particulars regarding the hospital and its furnishings.

In 1605 the crafts of Glasgow resolved to erect a hospital for the benefit of their decayed brethren, and for that purpose acquired Cloggy's rights in Blacader's foundation under the circumstances set forth in Nos. III. and IV. of the Appendix. If the original intention of the crafts was to build their new hospital on the site of the old one, that resolution was soon departed from, as almost simultaneously they acquired "ane waist foir frunt called Moirbottillis Manse," and erected it there. The site so chosen adjoined St. Nicholas Hospital, founded by Bishop Muirhead (1455-73), and was occupied by the Crafts' Almshouse in the beginning of the present century. The new Barony Church now stands on part of the ground (Glasgow Charters, Part I., p. cxxii.). The site of Blacader's Hospital was feued out by the Crafts in the year 1610, as narrated in Appendix No. V.]
